NORTHFIELD HOMESTEADS

The residence of Mrs. J. M. Foreman

The imposing colonial house opposite the Dickinson Memorial Library has its earliest days shrouded in doubt. One authority states that it was built by Obadiah Dickinson Esq., about 1785 while another seems satisfied that it was built by John Barrett, the lawyer in 1798 for his relative, Benjamin Callender, who came to Northfield the fall of 1797 opened a store in a building not far from the house. As both authorities agree that it was built before 1800, and all ought to agree, that it is a most charming old house it seems quite needless to continue searching for the year that saw its completion.

Though the house has had a few minor changes during its some one hundred and forty or fifty years the structure still retains its generous proportions and pleasing lines. Fencing, a friendly fireplace and spacious and inviting rooms hold all the charms of the older homesteads and though slight changes may have been made it takes a fire, flood or rash modernization to obliterate the beautifully proportioned interiors of the houses that our ancestors built.

Again I am compelled to linger over the "north front room" as it, like many of its contemporaries, seems the least altered through the years. The north front room, with its cheering fire-place and immense wide, white panels is truly an ideal retreat for a library where one can gather around him his friendly treasures of the book-case and where, on long winter evenings, with a blazing log for companionship, the world and worry can be left behind.

Just why the "North Front Rooms", in so many of the old houses, were preserved in their original form, is rather puzzling. The "North Front Rooms" were the post-offices, the doctor's and lawyer's offices, and the recruiting offices. They were the rooms generally used for any unusual occasion and must have seen hard usage but it is to be noted that they are, in most cases, the only rooms that have retained their originality.

As one of my sources states that Benjamin Callender, a merchant, and a relative of Lawyer Barrett, was the first occupant, and another source states that Obadiah Dickinson, a leading man in town affairs, was not only the first occupant but the builder, I will pass over the disputed epoch and arriving at the point of time where both sources are in agreement, namely, the years in which it was occupied by Thomas Doak, I will try to follow out the remaining years of the history of the house with an unknown builder.

It seems fairly well authenticated that when the house was bought by Doak he made extensive repairs and improvements, and this in itself would give weight to the statement that the house was built before 1798. As it is known that Doak was living in his remodelled house as early as 1812, it would lead one to believe, that a house only fourteen years old, would be in little need of repairs, while one that had seen some twenty-seven years use might need renovation.

Doak was a merchant and came to Northfield from Dracut. He ran a general store in the building that is now the residence of Mr. Frank Britton. Formerly the store had been owned by Benjamin Callender, who later opened another store further south on Main Street. Doak was one of the proprietors of the Northfield Academy of Useful Knowledge when that institution was founded. For some reason, now unknown, Doak failed and fled to Canada where he died. Mr. Doak's second wife was Betsey Mead of this town. His daughter, Elizabeth, born in Northfield, married a member of the Canadian Parliament. His son, William, leaves no record in Northfield History.

Hugh W. Greene who served as State Senator in 1857 and 1858 appears as the next owner of the house but any source of historical data that I have at my command rather neglects Mr. Greene and so I am constrained to do the same.

As deeds are usually regarded as being correct, we can feel assured that the next owner was Mr. Lewis J. Powers, a banker from Springfield, who bought the house, for a summer residence, in 1862 from Mr. Greene. Mr. Powers made quite extensive changes, changing the hall and removing the old chimney at the south side of the house, thereby going away with the fireplace in the living room, and adding two bow windows. Mr. Powers held the house but two years, selling, in 1864, to John Mattoon.

John Mattoon, a Northfield boy, was one of the many lured to the West in '49 by the discovery of gold. He sailed from New York, for the eldorado on the coast, in company with his relative, Elihu Mattoon, of this town. The crew of the ship on which Mattoon embarked mutinied and the vessel was forced to remain in Rio de Janeiro harbor for a heart-breaking wait of three months. After this delay, and a tedious voyage around "The Horn," Mattoon at last reached California only to find that the life of a prospector and miner was too severe for his physical abilities. Looking about for something that would not prove too hard for his capacities he at last entered the grocery business and before long found himself a thriving wholesale grocer. Returning to New York, a few years later, on a business trip, he met and married Miss Susan Stranahan with whom he returned to San Francisco. Mrs. Mattoon, did not live but a few years and not long after her death, Mr. Mattoon, and his infant daughter, returned to the east. Mr. Mattoon, having married a second time, returned to Northfield and lived here until his death in 1905. Since then Mrs. Foreman, his daughter, has made the old house her summer home.

The old house, shadowed by wide-spreading maples, has an air of aloof and serene dignity, as though the passing rush of the generation of today mattered but little to its memories of more sedate manners and days. Perhaps this stately old residence more nearly typifies the home of "An Old New England Aristocrat" than any of the old Northfield homesteads.

Fortnightly Plans Are Considered

The Program Committee of the Women's Fortnightly Club consisting of Mrs. Ross Spencer chairman, Mrs. William Hoehn, Miss Fanny Hatch, Mrs. W. Wood, Mrs. Mary Andrews Conner, Mrs. F. W. Freeman and President, Mrs. Martin E. Vorce were called together in a preliminary session at the home of Mrs. Spencer last Friday evening to discuss plans for the literary, civic and educational work of the ensuing year. The members of the Committee are very enthusiastic and an interesting year is being looked forward to.

High School Lawn Party A Successful Affair

The lawn party on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Pitt scheduled for last Wednesday was held on Thursday instead owing to the inclement weather. The benefit was for the trip of the Seniors Class to Washington. Cake, candy and ice cream were sold and many other things. Games were played and a good time enjoyed by all attending.

In the evening there was an entertainment held indoors. Music was furnished by Carleton L'Honnemieu, Leon Dannel, Seth Field, Emile Calvacca and a group of Mt. Hermon students. The sketch, "Thirty Years Ago and Now," was well given by a group of players in costume.

Thank You
The Senior class of the Northfield High School wishes to thank all the ladies who contributed cakes, candy, or flowers to the lawn fete given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Pitt on July 8th for the benefit of the Senior Washington trip; also to thank all those who helped in other ways and the musicians who contributed part of the entertainment that evening.

Teacher Resigns
Miss Aurelia Ferguson who for a number of years has been principal of the Centre School has resigned her position to accept a teaching position at Warehouse Point, Conn., where she will have charge of a larger school. Miss Ferguson is leaving Northfield with regret but her friends congratulate her in the deserved recognition which she deserves.

Women's Foreign Missionary Conference Opens

The world and its people will be given careful consideration by the Women's Foreign Missionary Conference this week at the Northfield Seminary grounds. About a thousand delegates from many of the churches of the East have arrived to take part in the 28th session.

Stanley Jones of India, Dr. Eleanor T. Calverly of Arabia, Mabel R. Nowlin, and Alice B. Van Doren, and edited by Miss Mary Schaeffer Platt of Britain, will be the textbook used for chief study, "Rural Billions" by Prof. Charles McConnell of Boston will also be used.

The whole conference body will unite for a half hour of worship at the beginning of each day under the direction of Dr. Milton T. Stauffer, professor at the New Brunswick Theological Seminary, New Brunswick, N. J. Prof. H. Augustine Smith, director of the fine arts of religion in Boston university will co-operate in this service. Mr. Smith will also direct the music of the conference, and in addition give a course on the wonder and glory of the hymnal and the fine arts in the service of the church and of missions.

Meetings will be held each day at sunset at Round Top, where are the graves of D. L. Moody, the evangelist and his wife, Mrs. K. E. Vergese, an Indian Christian from Bombay and Mrs. Frank Tucker of Berkeley, Cal., who recently returned from mission service in South Africa, will address the conference.

About 200 girls are living in tents, maintaining a camp life on the campus. These will be grouped according to denomination. The program for them is divided into classes, music, and inspirational meetings, with the afternoons given over to rest and recreation, including swimming, hiking, tennis and picnics. Camp leaders are Mrs. W. A. Hardenbergh of Ridgewood, N. J., for the Methodists; Mrs. C. Corbett of New York for the Presbyterians, Miss E. H. Mayo of Portland, Me., for the Universalists; Selah Richmond of Portland, Me., for the Friends; Mrs. W. G. Boomhower of Jersey City for the Lutherans; Sue Weddell of New York for the Dutch Reformed church; Ruth I. Seabury of Boston, for the Congregationalists and Helen Moore of Newton for the Baptists.

Mulligans Vs. Finnigans

On Tuesday afternoon July 21st, which is the anniversary day of the great battle of Bull Run, the Northfield Hotel's baseball grounds will again witness a recurrence of the famous annual battle between the Mulligans and the Finnigans—two baseball teams made up of hotel employees who while peaceful during the ordinary days of the year—become quite warmed up on this day and seem intent to "wipe up the diamond" with each other. Feelings run rather high but the record of the former years doings prove that they have not "spilt any blood." This year battle will be a real fight and the grounds will no doubt be crowded with spectators to cheer each side—of course the colors are green and—well what's the use of saying—However wear your favorite color and come and shout for your crowd.

The grand parade starts from the hotel at two o'clock sharp so be on hand to witness the procession. The umpire of the game will be Hon. Philip Porter and he will occupy a caged box.

The lineup of the teams are as follows:—

Food Sale

The Ladies Sewing Society of the Trinitarian Congregational Church, will hold its annual Food and Pantry Articles Sale on Wednesday, July 29 at 2.30 p.m. Ice cream and tea will be served. The sale will be held on Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Pitt's lawn. If stormy, the next day.

Last Sunday At The Auditorium

Last Sunday's service at the Auditorium was on the closing days of the Northfield Interdenominational Home Missions conference and the address was given by Dr. W. T. Graham, Dean of the Oberlin Theological Seminary, Oberlin, Ohio, who had been giving a series of addresses at this conference throughout the week. Mr. W. R. Moody, son of the evangelist D. L. Moody, presided.

The Virginia Fresh-Air camp, made up of 25 small girls selected from the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York, sang several selections. Miss Marguerite Hazard, head of the department of church school music at Union Theological Seminary, New York, gave a solo. Rev. J. East Harrison offered prayer.

Dr. Graham spoke about knowing oneself. He said that from an astronomical point of view it was more difficult to answer that question today than at the time men thought of the heavens and their stars as being just above the earth. "Is there any significance to man?" the speaker asked. Measured by quantity alone man cannot be considered important, but when reckoned in terms of potentialities of power, man's size becomes significant. And if man is thought of in the values taught by Jesus Christ, then he is highly important.

There is also the urge to find oneself in significant endeavor. This world does not seem to offer many opportunities for that, especially in our machine age. To be sure, every individual is different in his thumbprint, but isn't the modern world being standardized to a large extent? Social problems today cry out for solution. People will tolerate depression so long, and then an explosion takes place. "God did not create us automatons," the speaker stated.

At the close Dr. Graham pointed out the desire of every body for security, or freedom from dependence. It is a worthy ambition. Man does not live by bread alone. True security, worthy expression, and knowledge of oneself come when an individual lives according to the principles taught by Jesus.

Fire Destroys

Fire destroyed the small home of Karlo Franko on the old Millers Falls Road on Tuesday afternoon between three and four o'clock. It is presumed the fire caught from a defective chimney. The house was occupied as the home of Mr. and Mrs. Franko, their daughter and husband with two children. The Northfield Fire department was called and rendered efficient service.

Mr. Gilmour of Denver, Colorado who preached in the Unitarian Church last Sunday on the subject, "Science and Religion," listed the everyday important questions which arise in every human life, which science does not touch to answer, and which only religion, an abiding faith in God and man's possibilities, can answer.

Conference Of Religious Education

The Conference of Religious Education, accredited by the International Council of Religious Education as a Standard Training School, holds its twenty-eighth annual session at the Northfield Seminary, July 22 to 31st inclusive and is under the direction of Dr. Herbert W. Gates as Dean. The program to be offered will include all of the best features of former years together with new ones which will add attractiveness. Special emphasis will be given to the Young People's division.

About thirty courses will be offered in Bible Study, Principles of Teaching, Materials and Methods for the various departments of the Church School with demonstration and laboratory work, Educational Dramatics, Missionary Education, and other courses for advanced students.

The conference is non-sectarian in organization and spirit. The members of the Board of Managers are chosen by the New England State Councils of Religious Education, the Educational Boards of the co-operating denominations: Baptist, Congregational, Episcopal, Methodist, Presbyterian, Unitarian and Universalist; and six members-at-large chosen by the Board.

Officers of the Board are: Chairman, Hon. Robert Chapin Parker, Westfield, Mass.; Vice-Chairman, Carl A. Hempel, Lynn, Mass.; Secretary and Registrar, Bryant Nichols, Auburndale, Mass.; Treasurer, Louis A. Olney, Lowell, Mass.; Assistant Treasurer, Edith M. Behnke, Boston, Mass.

The Education Committee, which carries the major responsibility for the program of the conference, consists of the following: Herbert W. Gates (Chairman), Professor James P. Berkeley, Rev. Robert W. Coe, Carl A. Hempel, Rev. Sidney Lovett, Rev. Ivan S. Nowlan, Bryant Nichols and Mrs. W. T. Powell.

The Prospectus has this to say about this conference.

"There is a growing conviction on the part of pastors and leaders in the Christian church that religious education must be taken more seriously and carried on more effectively. Upon its success depends in large measure the success of the church and of Christian civilization.

The situation calls for wise guidance in accord with principles on which we can rely with confidence. It calls for a type of religious education which shall develop in persons and in society a consciousness of God as real in human experience, acceptance of the divine purpose and plan as revealed through Jesus Christ, and hearty and effective participation in the enterprise of building a Christian community, nation and world.

The task is difficult and, therefore, challenging. It demands training and experience in leadership. We have made great progress during recent years in the development of better methods and materials of religious education. The value of these depends, however, upon the quality of leadership that is available. No lesson help, plan or method is any better than the skill of the leader who uses it. Indeed, the very advance that has been made in technique and material has created a problem because it has outstripped our progress in leadership training.

For twenty-eight years the Northfield Conference of Religious Education has been helping to furnish this kind of training. Located at East Northfield, on the campus of Northfield Seminary, in the midst of beautiful natural surroundings and with all the rich associations and traditions of this center of Christian education, it offers exceptional advantages to those who seek the enrichment of their own lives and a better preparation for Christian service. Its courses of study cover a wide range of practical subjects and its faculty is made up of men and women of national reputation, sound learning and practical experience.

Northfield Conference offers to pastors, directors of religious education, church school workers, parents and all who are genuinely interested in its ideals and purposes a hearty welcome and a profitable experience."

Herbert Austin Reed

Death has claimed another well known Northfield resident. Mr. Herbert Austin Reed, born in West Swanton, N. H., November 12th 1880—was 51 years of age. He had been in failing health for some time and only recently was taken to Northampton for observation and treatment where he passed away from chronic myocarditis. He had been for many years with the Northfield Hotel garage and later was in business for himself. In town affairs he was active and last year was Fire Warden for the community. He was interested in outdoor life and was one of the leaders in the organization of the Fish and Game Club. Mr. Reed was married October 30, 1904 to Bessie M. Smith who with his sons, Francis, Edward and Ralph survive him. Also his mother, Mrs. Abbie Reed of Montague City; four brothers, Robert of New Haven, Conn., George John and Burton of Greenfield and a sister, Mrs. Edith Lewis of East Providence, R. I.

He was a member of the Congregational Church. The funeral was Thursday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. W. W. Coe officiating and interment was in West Northfield cemetery.

Rev. George C. Cressey, Ph. D., of Geneva, Ill., will be the special minister who will preach at the church 10.45 next Sunday morning. These visiting ministers are bringing big vital messages for all people.

Drury—Robb Wedding At Memorial Chapel

The wedding of Miss Phoebe Elizabeth Drury, daughter of Mrs. L. Lorimer Drury of Mount Hermon, Mass., and Dr. George P. Robb of Boston, son of the Rev. and Mrs. George M. Robb of Fresno, California, took place Saturday afternoon at 4.30 o'clock in the Memorial Chapel of Mount Hermon School. The bride's father was the late L. Lorimer Drury, alumni secretary for Mount Hermon School for 28 years, the boys' division of the Northfield Schools.

Rev. Lester P. White, pastor of the church, conducted the single-ring service. The bridal party was made up of Mrs. L. Lorimer Drury, mother of the bride, who gave her away; the bride's sister, Katherine Roberts Drury of Rosas, California, was the maid of honor; a brother, Charles Lucian Drury of Mount Hermon escorted the bride in the wedding procession; and the best man was Dr. Ovid O. Meyer of Boston.

The bride wore an ivory satin bridal dress and a Spanish lace veil, and carried Johanna Hill roses. Her traveling suit was blue georgette. Miss Katherine, Drury, the maid of honor wore a powder blue crepe gown, and carried talismans roses. The flowers at the church and in the home were white Japanese iris and green ferns.

The organist was Carlton W. L'Honnemieu of Mount Hermon, who played the wedding march from Lohengrin and Mendelssohn's recessional at the close. Wedding guests arrived from distant parts of Vermont, Worcester, Springfield, Boston, New York, and California. Following the ceremony a reception took place in the home, and refreshments were served.

Miss Drury is a graduate of the Northfield Seminary, 1924, and of Smith College, 1928. Dr. Robb is a graduate of the Indiana University School of Medicine, 1926. At present he is a resident at the Thorndike laboratories of the Boston City Hospital, and an assistant in medicine at the Harvard Medical School. Their engagement was announced in April.

After the wedding the couple left on a motor trip of three weeks to the White Mountains. They will reside in Boston after September 1st.

Children's Drama Course

An unusual opportunity is coming to people of this vicinity who love drama to enjoy six plays, given by the Children's Theatre Company of New York, under the direction of Clare Tree Major. This group of adult, professional players enjoys an enviable reputation, and is entering its eighth season, chiefly in cities such as New York and Boston. Much lauded for their finished and mature performances, they have the unique ability of presenting plays that are truly within the emotional and intellectual grasp of a child. The plays, which are set in several countries, give the children charming glimpses of national customs, character, costumes and background, as well as delightful entertainment.

The plays to be presented on the first Friday afternoon of every month from November to April inclusive, from four to five-thirty o'clock at the Greenfield High School Auditorium are as follows:—"Heidi," "Hans Brinker," "The Snow Queen," "The Secret Garden," "Little Women," and "Alice in Wonderland." This undertaking is sponsored by the Drama Committee of the Greenfield Women's Club.

It is hoped that many Northfield parents will give their children this opportunity to see the finest drama and to enjoy their book heroes as living people.

The committee in Northfield that is sponsoring this movement is as follows: Mrs. Wolfert Webber, chairman; Mrs. Maury Andrews Conner, Mrs. A. P. Pitt, Mrs. Carroll Miller, Mrs. Frank Montague, Mrs. A. G. Moody, Mrs. W. P. Stanley, Mrs. M. E. Vorce, and Mrs. Louise Smith of Mt. Hermon. There will be a meeting at three o'clock on Monday, July 20, at Mrs. Webber's home, 29 Highland Avenue, when the whole program will be discussed and explained and when subscriptions may be made for course tickets. The prices are comparatively low, and a percentage of the receipts will be given to the Northfield P. T. A., under whose auspices, the committee is working. It is possible for adults to purchase tickets for their own use. All those who are interested to know more about the Children's Theatre, and the Greenfield performances, are cordially welcome on Monday, July 20, at three o'clock.

EDITORIAL

It is evident that somebody in Franklin County wants a new court house and they apparently have succeeded—so well was the whole scheme piloted through the political sea of legislation and legislators that even the Governor signed the bill—all accomplished without the help of the public who must pay the bill. Perhaps Greenfield wanted another architectural monument to its increasing list of public buildings—perhaps county officials wanted to lounge about in more luxurious offices comparable with those of large corporations—one thing is quite evident the public and the taxpayer hasn't been heard "Crying aloud" for a more sumptuous and spacious edifice or for an opportunity to throw away more of their substance on marble floors and granite blocks. Even officials of the county admit that they "can if necessary and would get along" with the present building.

Perhaps the county may need a new building some day but who is it that wants one so much that despite "depression" and "high taxes" feels it should have it now—we wonder who? Surely if the county could speak in a referendum—economy and patience would express itself in no uncertain result. So far as Northfield is concerned this newspaper, has never received any official information of this effort—from an apparently hypnotized County Board or from any other official source—and our citizens know little if anything about the whole "works" and have been kept in ignorance. Our voters have not been consulted—have never been requested to approve or reject—we simply pay. Who is it that wants a new court house?

Unfortunately some Editorials and Public Forum letters are crowded out in this week's issue.

THE UNWORTHY BENEFIT

(Editorial in Greenfield Courier and Gazette)

"Many of us have wondered during the past year when such a great amount of welfare work has been done just what percent went to the assistance of the worthy and what to the unworthy. The Phelan report, just made to Governor Ely, declares that welfare agencies have disbursed many thousands of dollars to unworthy persons. The committee of which James J. Phelan is head began its work last October. It has made thorough investigation, not only to find whether or not assistance has wisely been given but also to discover means for better conducting relief in the future. The committee report criticizes many welfare boards and their manner of awarding assistance. These abuses not only have cost the taxpayers thousands of dollars but through the relief going to the unworthy many worthy persons have suffered. The difficulty of properly administering relief is fully recognized. It is a well-known fact that many of the most worthy fail to secure aid because they not only are too proud to ask help but they actually conceal their need and suffering. It is to be hoped that the committee has been enabled to gather information which may serve to lessen the chance for the unworthy to benefit at the expense of the taxpayer and of those deserving of assistance who oftentimes are overlooked."

A True Benefactor

"Herbert C. Parsons of Boston, Mass., has received the honorary degree of master of arts from Harvard University. For his service to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, the country, and the world he deserves the recognition. Mr. Parsons is probation commissioner of his State. In this office he has organized to an extraordinary degree the system of caring for delinquents before the law. By the wisdom of his humanity, the blessing of allowance is discreetly made for many persons who have been brought into court to be punished. All the factors in their personalities are weighed. Throughout the judicial system the gentle but unremitting force of his influence has been exercised so that a man who is truly entitled to his chance receives it, not as an act of charity to the individual but with that discerning trust which is at once scientific and sensible of personal and social consequences. The treatment of the prisoner has thus become one of the fine arts."

Not a judge of intelligence in this broad land but knows the benefit of the counsel that directly and indirectly comes from Herbert Parsons; and his friends, who are legion, all have a share in the honor which the eldest university has bestowed, because they feel that what he is and what he does with gracious mastery they would all so do and be. His work is elemental. The Harvard distinction is a vicarious one, and none could be greater or more lasting."—From The Christian Register.

The People's Forum

Chit—Chat

Dear Mr. Editor,

Your correspondent, having an hour when there was nothing in the line of fires or police news to report, dropped in on the father of the charming Hepatica for a neighborly bit of gossip. After a brief exchange of "howdy-dos," I casually remarked that it was unfortunate that he was not present at the birth of his daughter. He gruntingly replied that births meant nothing to him and that he wouldn't go across the street to see "The Birth Of A Nation." What interested him was what a person did after he was born. "Look at the bunch of youngsters here in town," he said, "They've got the people of East Northfield so excited over the crime wave that they want the federal officers to come on and try and collect the income taxes of the big gang leaders. If they persist in robbing and destroying property they should be made to pay their taxes just the same as the law abiding citizens or rum runners."

I saw that Hepatica's father was getting rather excited so I changed the subject and asked him when his daughter was coming out. "She's coming out as soon as you folk can get in the north cemetery gate." The same thing that keeps her in keeps you out. "If you don't believe it go and look the two places over."

I remarked that one gate to a cemetery ought to be enough for a small town, as no body was exactly pushing and crowding to get in. "That maybe," says he, "but why close the north gate? If you're satisfied with one gate why not use the north one, then you won't have to march by the open plumbing south of the old freight depot." Maybe you're right, I remarked, but the corpse don't care. "No," comes back Patty's dad, "but the mourners have enough grief as it is without having to hold their noses and wipe their eyes at the same time."

The question was rather a logical one and having no answer at hand I mumbled something about writing to the People's Forum. "People's Forum!" he growled, "the only thing that I ever saw in that was a one man debate about churches joining hands in brotherly love and I never knew which side the debater was on." "Did you?" I asked. "I had to admit that I thought the debate more of a sermon than an argument."

"Well, I'm going back to work," says Patty's dad, "I believe in keeping the grass short, even if the Main Street crowd don't."

While there may be some "bull" in all this it must be remembered that gossip is made up of many, many things.

Obidiah Todd

Dear Mr. Editor,

Speaking of baseball, the best game ever played in Northfield took place Friday evening July 10th. To those who were not there I feel compelled to say that they missed two hours of entertainment such as may not be duplicated for some time to come. The contest ended in favor of Northfield by a close margin of 4 to 3. So many brilliant plays were made that one could write an article of interest and of merit on any one of them; but since that is out of the question, I can only ask you to rely on preceding statements.

One so often reads of certain medicines that will dispel any ailment. It makes no difference what it is—corns, bunions, or warts; liver, spleen, or kidneys. All of these are put to route on receiving the first application or dose of these wonderful remedies. So many of us have been led to believe these assertions that we stand back of them to the detriment of our reputation and the depletion of our purses.

What then can we claim for baseball? It causes the weak to grow strong, it puts new life and energy into the laggard, it makes the hen-pecked husband take on a new outlook, it helps the tired mother forget for the moment that she ever married such a husband. To the old maid it gives new visions of hope, the bachelor is reminded once more of his boyhood days. And yet even that is not all, for we find that Kellogg locks up his store, Montague leaves his wife at home and alone, Tenney overlooks his hay crop and Shearer forgets everything. Furthermore, Polhemus goes wild with excitement and throws his hat away, Piper, Whitmore, and Holton fight for seats among the ladies, Miller and Burnett are just about as bad. We also find that Sheldon leaves his supper, Buffum has his brought to him, Harland Waite yells at the top of his voice, and Krause loses all sense of humor. Then there is Lee Holloway—

What more can I say Ladies and Gentlemen!—I have said enough to convince the most pessimistic, but when one hears from all sides of a threat to "Kill the umpire," one can readily see that baseball is far reaching in its effect and consequences. Take for example one—Hartman, who laughs so loud and long that he attracts the passing motorist. We have yet to see a case, no matter how stubborn, that will not react to this wonderful remedy—baseball.

But, baseball demands equipment, equipment calls for finance, and it is on finance that rests the key to the whole situation. In other words we need money, and we need it at once.

To keep our town alive and active, to sustain interest and enthusiasm in our young people, to preserve the spirit of youth and encourage every thought of relaxation in our older generation, we should and we must retain and support the king of all sports. This leads me to say that a contribution sent to me for this cause will be greatly appreciated.

Philip Porter

Dear Mr. Editor,

Standing at the Northfield post office the other day with a neighbor he directed me to look south along the lovely stretch of Main Street. This is a good place to form an opinion in the current discussion about whether Main Street should be kept historically antique or slicked up in modern fashion. As far as eye can see the lawns are trimmed short except where the Grange is raising a fine crop of hay. Also the Grange has a cowpath where the other lots have a sidewalk. Yours for Northfield Beautiful, Agricola

The Poet's Corner

The Butterfly married the Mole,
And folks said their prospects were fair;
But, sad to relate on the whole,
They made a most miserable pair;
For the quadded clung to his hole,
And the insect was made for the air.

The Butterfly married the Mole,
And folks said their prospects were bright;
But light was the Butterfly's soul
Whilst the Mole was a creature of night!
Since the union was not of the soul
It ended in dissonance, quite.

Well, it ended, at last, in divorce.—
With, maybe, a twinge at the heart;
But that was the properest course,
For creatures so widely apart;
(And daily we read of much worse
From frailer excuses which start!)

But the very first frost of the Fall
Saw the Butterfly dead on the ground;
By the Equinox deluging all
The Mole in his burrow was drowned;
And truly, I cannot recall
The moral—if ever I found!

That New Lawn Game! Crazy Croquet

The irreverent call it Crazy Croquet, or even Cock-eyed Croquet, but never mind! It is lots of fun, and can be set up in almost any one's yard, and takes skill to make a low score.

The game is reminiscent of miniature golf, and can indeed be played with golf balls and clubs, though the only court at present in existence is built for croquet balls and mallets. The latter can be played on a grass court where golf balls would be impossible.

The inventor, who wishes to be anonymous, has given our reporter the following description of the game. The game is to hole the ball in as few shots as possible. Every player is on his own, and can play against his own score as well as in competition with others.

The present court has 16 holes. Each unit calls for a shot of 20 feet or more, and has from one hazard to three or four hazards. These hazards consist of sloping terrain, single and double arches and bridges, stone obstacles, tunnels, a water hazard, a trick box, etc.

The court was used as a means of gathering in dimes at the lawn fete at Mr. and Mrs. Pitt's place on Wednesday.

Automobile Tours And Trips From Northfield

Try Pequot Path

Historic Coastal Trail

The Connecticut shore road, between New Haven and Saybrook, is remarkable both for its fine beaches and for the great number of colonial houses dating back to the 1600's and 1700's.

This shore road was once known as the Pequot Path. Up and down it the colonists pursued the warlike Pequot Indians—and were pursued by them.

Later the mails were carried along this trail, and it is still familiarly known as the Post Road.

It appears to be a just claim that there are more really old houses in the villages hereabouts than along any similar stretch of road in the East. All this vicinity, settled before 1644, has maintained much of its pre-Revolutionary atmosphere. Guilford alone is said to have more than 100 ancient houses.

Here are a few of the places you will wish to visit. In Branford, the Blackstone Memorial Library. Within its dome are some fine frescoes showing how book-printing developed. In the Moose Hill section there is the queer old Norton house, which has only one great room to a floor. About a mile east of Branford stands the Goldsmith house (1700), which has the rare pre-Georgian overhang of the upper story.

The stone house in Guilford, built in 1639 by Rev. Henry Whitfield, is said to be the oldest stone house in America. Its walls are three feet thick and its mammoth fireplace measures 12 feet across. The old place is now a museum. You may see here the first town clock made in this country. Ebenezer Parmelee, its maker lived in the Wildman house (1668), now restored. The Bishop house (1665) and the Starr house (1665) are of great interest.

Then there is the Acadian house. This gave shelter to Acadian peasants who came ashore from a British ship in 1755 after the destruction of Grand Pre. The famous Black House was painted black by its Huguenot owner when he had given way to grief following the execution of Louis XVI. Madison, peaceful colonial village, noted for its fourfold row of old elms, and Clinton with splendid beaches, team with historic houses and monuments. In the Meigs house (1690) in Madison is the old three-cornered hat, pierced by the British bullet which killed Capt. Meigs in 1772.

Locals

The restraining order on dogs has been raised by the Greenfield Board of Health.

The highest temperature for June was 94 degrees on the twentieth while the low temperature of 45 degrees was recorded June 3.

Word has been received that Rev. E. D. Kellogg of Orange, Mass., who was seized by communists in China is now safe at Foochow and awaiting developments.

Many out of State cars are noticed on the highways. There seems to be more than usual this summer. Not all from one or two states but from nearly all the states in the union and some from Canada.

Forest Avenue in Millers Falls which connects the Northfield Road with the Boston Highway is closed to traffic as a large steam shovel is tearing up the road preparatory to permanent regrading.

A heavy hay crop has resulted from the abnormal amount of rain in May and June, but was of poor quality in many cases. The Seminary farm force has been busily engaged in gathering its crop and housing it.

Stanley Cummings Jr. of our neighboring town Shelburne Falls, has started out on a bicycle trip of 250 miles through New England to Sherbrooke, Canada. He will work his way enroute and expects some novel experiences.

Commissioner Lyman of the Department of Public Works is advertising for bids for the construction of the new bridge across Falls River in the town of Gill to carry the road for the new "cut off". They will be publicly opened July 21st.

It is now possible by reason of legislation enacted for a minor between 15 and 18 years of age to secure a fishing license in this state (for fishing purposes only) for a license fee of $1.25 provided the applicant has the written consent of his parents. All permits are issued by the town clerk Mrs. H. M. Haskell.

Walter Sherwood formerly of Northfield who now conducts a restaurant at Millers Falls bought recently some live Rhode Island hens of Mrs. William Howe of South Prospect St., that town. These he dressed off and on opening up one of the largest in the lot discovered, much to his amazement, 12 fully formed eggs. Out of he 12 there was only one with the regulation hard shell. Five eggs in the lot were double-yolk. The eggs were taken to a store and weighed and averaged four ounces apiece.

TEN years ago we tried to do without insurance protection for our house and furniture, which we owned outright. Just a little later the blow struck—fire destroyed everything. It has been a terrible struggle to rebuild our finances—we could be $15,000 ahead today if we had insured.

There is no excuse for not insuring adequately.

BUY STANDARD GOODS

In the effort to reduce prices
many merchants are constantly tempted to take on unbranded and unknown lines. Buy well established trade-marked, nationally advertised goods.
When prices are established on such goods, the public has confidence in the fact. On unknown, untried and generally uncertain goods the claim of price re-adjustment means practically nothing.I can give you an honest re-

Financial Review

Tift Brothers

The stock market went fast last week and in a period of less than one month has regained half its loss of the 95-day decline that began in March. From a purely technical standpoint, a temporary set-back or a period of hesitation is in order at about this stage of the game, but we strongly advise that the investor give no consideration to such a problematical and short-term development. To the buyer of securities on borrowed money, minor fluctuations are always of importance, but even he, we think, is entitled to a high degree of confidence. Reactions come—generally when least expected—but the important factor, and the one to bank on, is the trend. The trend was down for 21 months from September, 1929; we believe that the trend turned definitely June 2, 1931.

Outside of the stock market, the news of the last seven days has made generally pleasant reading. Commodities gained ground for the second week running and seem to signal an advancing tendency that should run the rest of the year, while bonds, U. S. Governments excepted, were higher. There was some evidence that pessimists have been in error in predicting second quarter earnings even more dismal than those preceding; Westinghouse Electric and Anaconda surprised by declaring regular dividends and the chairman of the board of the first mentioned company stated that the deficit of the first three months would be displaced by figures "in black" for the second quarter. While volume of business is no better, economies of operation should enable many companies to make a better net showing. Other favorable items include the $100,000,000 credit to Germany, together with a hint of similar assistance for South America to be forthcoming.

Those who can have no confidence in stocks until business improves—and we believe their position to be a fallacious one—will find no encouragement in the most recent figures. Trade and industry continue to idle along the long drawn-out depression bottom with real promise of a more-than-seasonal improvement in the Fall and little prospect of anything of importance before then. Last week's indices just held their own with the slightly upward seasonal curve with bank debits, building contracts, agricultural marketing and government expenditures on the favorable side to balance lower steel production, car loadings and retail trade.

Killed By Autos

Nineteen persons were killed by automobiles in Massachusetts during the week ending June 26th, which was two more than in the week before and the same number as in the same period last week.

The total of deaths to date is 388 or 18 higher than it was on the same date a year ago. Thirteen of last week's victims were adults; 12 were pedestrians, six were occupants of automobiles, and one was a motorcycle rider.

Installs Tear Gas

Tear gas guns, the latest in modern bank protective equipment have been installed in the lobby and offices of the Franklin County Trust company. There are five guns, one over the entrance, three beneath the tellers' booths, one in the president's office and another in the upstairs offices. The action of these instruments is effected through the touch of a button, a number of which are stationed at intervals all over the building. By touching one of these buttons or levers as they are in some cases, gas will be automatically fired from each of the five guns.

Hinsdale

Prentiss W. Taylor and family are planning to spend the summer at Forest Lake, Winchester, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. George Jones expect to leave this week for a several days' visit with relatives in New York state.

The following real estate transfer in Hinsdale was recorded in the office of the registry of deeds in Keene during the past week: William Powers and Jessie G. Smith, trustees, two tracts land.

Word has been received that Miss Margaret L. Wilkins, formerly of the local high school, class of 1927, graduated from the University of California at Los Angeles, June 12 with the degree of bachelor of arts.

Investigation by motor vehicle inspectors of the automobile accident in Swaney Monday night in which three persons were injured, disclosed that Vernal Varno of Hinsdale was operating the car and not Miss Gladys Sinclair of Brattleboro, Vt. A warrant was issued charging Mr. Varno with reckless driving. He was in municipal court this week and pleaded nolo to the charge and was fined $50 and costs. The machine which it is alleged he operated, left the highway and crashed into a fence.

South Vernon

Mrs. A. H. Evans, who has been quite ill with the grippe is improving.

Miss Ruth McNamara, who has been enjoying a 2 weeks vacation has returned to her work at the Vernon home.

It has been decided to have the chorus choir meet again at the parsonage for a rehearsal next Saturday at 3.30 p.m.

A service is planned to be held at the Vernon Chapel next week Wednesday, July 22, at 7.30 p.m. This service may be the last one to be held at the Chapel until fall.

Rev. Frank H. Leavitt, Supt. of the Vernon Home, who has been in ill health for a long time, went last week Monday to the Melrose Hospital in Melrose, Mass., for an operation.

Mrs. Dittmar, matron at the Vernon Home was called suddenly to go to the bedside of her granddaughter, who was seriously ill in northern Vermont. Mrs. Clara Pratt of West Northfield is in charge at the Vernon Home during her absence.

At the South Vernon Church next Sunday the services are as follows:— 9.30 a.m., Church School; 10.45 p.m., Song service, followed by a sermon by the pastor; 7.30 p.m., Midweek service at the Vernon Home Thursday. These meetings are especially interesting. Everyone come.

Mrs. Emam Shults of Brattleboro made the presentation speech giving the South Vernon Church a large and beautiful silk United States flag as a gift from the Seagrave Woman's Relief Corps of Brattleboro, Vt., at the morning service last Sunday. The pastor, Rev. George A. Gray, responded in well chosen words, in behalf of the people of the church.

It is not planned to have any more Woman's Home & Foreign Missionary Society meetings until fall. A unique way has been planned to raise money for missionary work and also for getting more new members for the Society during the summer. Little sunshine bags are given out and each one who receives a bag is to put into the bag one cent a day and 10 cents for every holiday or birthday from July 14 to Sept 15 when the bags are to be returned and every holder of a bag is expected to be present at the meeting and join the society.

The pastor, Rev. George A. Gray gave 2 fine sermons last Sunday. His subject for the morning service was "Joy in Suffering." The large chorus choir sang several pretty selections. The duet that was sung by Miss Ruth French of West Northfield and her sister, Mrs. Gladys Shattuck of East Northfield, Mass., was especially beautiful and very much enjoyed by all. The song service in the evening was interesting and followed by an impressive sermon by the pastor taken from Jer. 8:20. "The Harvest is Past, the Summer is ended and we are not saved."

A fine social was given at the parsonage last Friday evening to the members of the large chorus choir by Rev. and Mrs. George A. Gray and family. The evening was spent in a social way. Several pretty songs were sung by the choir and a number of beautiful piano solos were played by Miss Dorothy Gray. Mrs. Loren Cowles read a humorous selection, two pretty duets were sung, one by Mrs. Ruth French and Mrs. Gladys Shattuck, the other by Miss Evelyn Havencroft and Miss Eunice Holton, and the rest of the evening was spent in playing games which caused much fun and laughter. Cake and ice cream were served for refreshments. Everyone enjoyed themselves and the party broke up at a late hour.
